Ellyngton's power
breakfast.

WHERE TO SEAL THE (BUSINESS) DEAL...

→ Denver's newest powerbroker breakfast spot is Edge Restaurant inside the Four Seasons, where chef Simon Purvis stacks the menu with thoughtful fare. Not to be missed: the Front Range hash with eggs any style (we prefer over easy), braised buffalo, Yukon potatoes, bell peppers, and a zippy chipotle hollandaise. 1111 14th St., 303-389-3000, edgerestaurantdenver.com

→ Ellyngton's breakfast begins at 7 a.m., so you can dine early and still get to the office on time. Keep it light with a broiled grapefruit followed by house-made granola, or go big with the Denver omelet. 321 17th St., 303-297-3111, brownpalace.com

→ Trying to impress a client? Head to the quiet, handsome dining room at Elway's. Order the springy asparagus and mushroom frittata—expertly paired with fire-roasted tomatoes and rosemary breakfast potatoes—for a dish that's light but filling. 1881 Curtis St., 303-312-3107, elways.com
